AT THE TOP OF BEN LOMOND.

"From the top of Ben Lomond," said an enthusiastic lover of the scenic beauties of this part of the west, "one can see into Nevada, Idaho and Wyoming and, if a way were provided for easy access to that mountain top which keeps vigil over Ogden, no tourist would pass through there without seeing that wonderful panorama of valley and mountain heights."

It has been proposed to construct a cog railroad up the cliffs from the side facing Ogden.

The scheme is feasible and the trip could be made more delightful and awe-inspiring than that of the journey up Pike's Peak.

Ben Lomond could be made one of Ogden's greatest attractions.

ZEPPELINS AND SUBMARINES.

Struggling to overcome the naval strength of Great Britain, the Germans have sought to break the blockade by sending out submarines of the Deutschland type and are now planning a battle fleet of Zeppelins capable of attacking a squadron of super-dreadnaughts. Word comes from Bern, Switzerland, that the latest Zeppelin to be seen on Lake Constance is 790 feet long, with four gondolas, one of which is 150 feet. "This ship of the air carries large guns and torpedo tubes. Part of the gondolas is armored."

The crew is made up of 44 men and the airship can travel 70 miles an hour.

In the battle off Jutland, the German warships were assisted by Zeppelins, which, though playing no great part in firing on the British, are reported to have been of great assistance in giving the enemy's formation.

tion and announcing the approach of Jellicoe's battleship squadron.

The Zeppelin, as well as the submarine, has its weakness, but both are to have a greater place in future wars, as inventive genius overcomes their defects. The Zeppelin must have favorable weather in which to operate, and the submarine, to retain a certain buoyancy, is frail in construction and quickly falls when exposed to attack. By overcoming these weaknesses, the two new weapons of warfare would be monsters of the air and deep as much to be dreaded as the fabled all-devouring dragons of old.

FARMERS NEAR OGDEN PROSPER.

Utah cherries and other early fruits are on the market in quantities to supply the local demand, but no large shipments, as in normal years, are being made to the outside.

There will be very few peaches and even the apple crop is far short of a year ago.

Still the outlook for the farmer is not altogether discouraging. While the first crop of alfalfa was very short, the promise of large second and third crops is good.

Sugar beets are flourishing. Seed planted after the severe frost of this spring has produced excellent results and the beet grower is looking forward to a large harvest. In the Amalgamated Sugar district, with a somewhat larger acreage than in 1915, 50,000 tons more beets will be topped, which, at the advanced price, will bring the farmers nearly $300,000 more than they have ever received from that source in one season.

So, notwithstanding the destructive frost, and the loss of much of the fruit, the farming territory tributary to Ogden will be as productive of dollars as at any time in the past.

WHAT THE DEUTSCHLAND MEANS.

The lessons to be learned from the arrival of the Deutschland, as seen by the Herald-Republican, are:

"Germany can have no further cause for quarrelling with the United States since the submarine liner has proven practical. By loading the Deutschland for the return voyage with a cargo of war munitions, Germany destroys its own argument that the United States has been unneutral because the allies were able, and the central powers were unable, to obtain and safely transport American products. Germany can no longer complain that the sale of war munitions to the allies is in violation of neutrality since Germany herself will be buying American munitions."

"Since the submarine merchantman is armed with two small defensive guns, Germany must also be considered as having abandoned the earlier contention that any armament makes a vessel a ship of war subject to attack without warning. If the Deutschland is an unarmed merchantman, though it carries two guns, then other merchant vessels, carrying defensive armament, must be considered as unarmed."

"With a sufficient number of submarines, such as the Deutschland, Germany should be able entirely to defeat the British blockade which has produced a shortage not only of food but of war materials in the Teutonic nations. That this condition may easily have an important bearing on the war will be readily understood. Americans also will reflect that this nation may some time have to reckon with conditions under which it will be possible for an enemy to dispatch hundreds of great submarines across the Atlantic and Pacific. If the Deutschland can make the trip unarmed, other submarines can make the trip armed."

WOMEN BEING BURNED TO DEATH.

With recurring frequency, news items similar to the following are to be found in the daily papers:

Eureka, Utah, July 12.—While cleaning clothes in her home here at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon with gasoline, the fumes of the gasoline coming in contact with a stove in which a small fire was burning, resulted in an explosion in which Mrs. Lee Mackay was fatally burned.

Flames which followed the explosion set the building on fire and it was totally destroyed. The office of the Bullion-Beck Mining company on the other side of the Mackay home was destroyed. The financial loss is about $1500.

Medical aid was summoned but she was so badly burned that her life is despaired of.

Constant warnings are not sufficient to prevent these accidents. Eventually a state law will have to be enacted compelling dealers in gasoline to personally caution buyers against using the dangerous fluid in a room where there is a fire. Not less than a dozen Utah women have been burned to death within three years by the gas generated by gasoline suddenly bursting into flame.

It is a general practice to use the liquid in cleaning clothes. Where the temperature is that of summer weather, gasoline rapidly evaporates, forming in the atmosphere a highly inflammable and explosive gas.

There are other cleaning fluids as good as gasoline which are not dangerous, and should be employed as a substitute.

HOW TO UPHOLD THE FLAG.

A writer on the San Francisco Bulletin takes issue with those who hold to the motto "My country, right or wrong," and proceeds to state the right attitude of a citizen in relation to the flag.

"The flag may be insulted in many ways, among which the worst is to bring it back out of a foreign country in which it has no moral right to remain; it may also be honored in many ways, among which the highest is not to carry it in a war of plunder against a weak, unhappy people," says the Bulletin. "The worst insult to the flag is to give it silly or materialistic meanings. For the man who pretends to be for our country right or wrong the flag can have no idealistic significance whatever. To him it is the symbol of nothing better than the unthinking partnership derived from his place of birth, residence or business. He advocates his natural right to choose between causes good and bad, intelligent or stupid. If he were consistent he would be as ready to crush democracy as to uphold it; let some sinister interest, controlling the government, wave a yard of bunting in his face and he would join with to destroy the very principles for which that parti-colored bunting used to stand. He would restore slavery, he would shoot down striking workmen, he would range up and down the hemisphere, rifle in hand, destroying other people's liberties and spinelessly surrendering his own. The American flag has represented at least a striving for democracy. Thousands of men who fell in the Civil war did truly consecrate themselves to human liberty, and to the destruction of an insolent aristocracy which had no place under such a flag. But the flag will not retain its sanctity if it can be successfully used in undemocratic causes, or if people encourage jingoistic journalists or sensational vaudeville performers to cheapen it."

DO NOT BE SWINDLED IN YOUR OWN HOME

A "Fake Test" Exposed

Some Baking Powders contain a speck and only a speck of dried albumen (sometimes called dried white of egg).

The U. S. Government has declared this speck of albumen is no help in the baking.

BUT, when water is added to a baking powder which contains albumen, such baking powder, no matter how poor it may be, will foam up much higher than any good baking powder which is not doped with albumen.

Agents for doped albumen powder come into your home and add water to their powder, and to one or two good baking powders which are not doped. The albumen powder foams up high in the glass; the others do not foam so high.

Then the agent tells you that this test shows that his powder is much stronger than the others. U. S. Government officials say this test is a fraud.

K C BAKING POWDER contains no albumen, and is legal under the National Pure Food Law and the Pure Food Law of each and every State.
